

DOWNTOWN MAGAZINE NYC

The Bailey: Traditional Pub with a Contemporary Twist

Smack-dab in the heart of Wall Street comes a dining option for Downtown's finest. The work of Irish restaurateur Jason O'Brien with partner and Executive Chef Donal Crosbie, The Bailey Pub and Brasserie brings a new perspective to the Financial District as a contemporary bar and eatery. Delectable food, craft beers, custom cocktails, and a fantastic wine list are all present at The Bailey, located at 52 William Street. The eatery is a looker, as well. Irish designer Brian McDonald created a contemporary yet inviting space by using dark wood floors, tin ceilings, and charcoal-colored walls decorated with colorful art pieces by artist Stephen Hall. The pub, while luxuriously decorated, is still sticking to its roots with traditional offerings such as Fish & Chips and Hungarian Beef Goulash. What a perfect way to end a hard day's work.

The Bailey Pub
52 Williams St.
New York, NY 10005
(212) 859-2200

Written By: Matt Scotto